PREFAGE

This edition of the general catalogue of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity follows in the main the plan of the Quinquennial Catalogue of 1891. Its aim has been to include a faithful and comprehensive biography of every member of Delta Upsilon. In addition but little of historical matter has been inserted. The first part includes a short sketch of each of the chapters founded since 1891, and the fraternity bibliography. The stress of the work has been placed upon the biographical portion which forms the second part, other features originally planned having been dropped in order to make this part as complete as possible.

The arrangement of the biographical matter for each member is the same as that followed by the '91 editor. Prizes however have been entered with the biography proper, and have not been given in a separate roll of honor. As additional matter the names of parents and preparatory school have been included. The use of abbreviations, of which a list is given on page 71, has been much more liberal, although the aim has been to employ only those that are commonly used and easily recognized. The star has been used to divide the different portions of each biography. All items referring to fraternity matters are put in italics. Italics are also used for titles of magazines. The following is the model which has been followed:

Present occupation. * Chapter and fraternity offices. * Date and place of birth; parents; preparatory school. * College offices and honors: in athletics; social life; scholarship; degrees in course. * Further studies; and occupations since graduation. * Offices of honor and trust. * Published works. * Contributions to magazines. * Membership in learned societies. * Honorary degrees. * Marriage. * Relatives in the fraternity. * (In case of deceased member) date of death, and place if different from last address.

An asterisk (*) is placed before the name of each member known to be deceased. Other signs used in the '84 and '91 catalogues to indicate non-graduates and missing members have been omitted. To avoid repetition the location of preparatory schools and other institutions of learning is generally omitted in the biographies. A partial list of these institutions with their addresses will be found on page 75. In the case of a missing member no address has been given, although the last known address is indicated in the text of the biography. For lawyers and business men living in large cities two addresses have usually been given. In such cases the second address is placed in the text of the biography. With lawyers this is the residence, while with others it is more often the office address.

A plan original with the present book has been that of also publishing in separate volumes those portions of the entire Decennial which relate to the respective chapters. There are included however with each chapter's records the geographical and name indexes of the entire fraternity.

During the last twelve years the records show that the total membership of the fraternity has grown from 5,063 to 8,238. Eight new chapters have been instituted and one, which died during the period of the civil war, revived. Of these, four are located in the East, two on the Pacific coast, one in the mid-West, and two in Canada.

Owing to circumstances which need not here be related the publication of the volume has been delayed more than a year beyond what was first contemplated. The work was completed during the summer of 1901, and the material then turned over to the printers. But little matter has been added since, although advantage has been taken of the delay in publication to insert the names of men initiated to December of 1902. The totals given on page 8 have been corrected to include these names.

The editor is under obligations and hereby returns thanks to the many members who have encouraged by their words and interest his work on the catalogue. He is under special obligations to the contributor of the article on the Founders, and to the various chapter editors. It has been through their efforts that most of the items noted in the biographies have been collected. Many of these editors being alumni have taken time from their own professional duties to help on the work of the fraternity.

FOUNDERS OF THE FRATERNITY

Sixty-seven fruitful years have passed since in a little dormitory room at Williams College thirty serious-minded young men met to organize a protest against college clannishness. Out of that organized protest on November 4, 1834, has sprung a broad national fraternity, based on principle, vigorous, enduring—the fraternity of Delta Upsilon.

One can scarcely dare to feel that in their earnest conference over the unhappy college politics of their own time, those pioneers cast even one look ahead at the possible future of their undertaking. One may decidedly question whether in their wildest visions they dreamed for a moment that they had attended upon the birth that night of a college brotherhood, which by the dawn of the new century should have thirty-five branches with seven hundred undergraduate members and 7,500 alumni. This is not to find any fault with the fraternity's founders for lack of farsightedness. As well upbraid a Lincoln in his cradle for not knowing that he was to be the martyred hero of a nation, reunited by bloody war. It is rather to emphasize in these days of our prosperity the lowly and unpretentious beginning of the fraternity and to praise without stint the clear, strong judgment,—the determined will that laid its firm foundation.

Fortunate, indeed, in its founders was the Williams chapter, and thereby the Delta Upsilon fraternity. If few of them rose in their days of labor far above the level of their fellows, all at least lived useful, honorable lives that made the world a little better. And it was given to one to be an early and honored leader in the journalism of the great West, and to another to sit upon the most exalted judicial tribunal in the world longer than any of his predecessors.

The Williams chapter was peculiarly a New England product. It was the original chapter of the only fraternity born on the soil of the old Bay State. Its first members, although Williamstown is on the border of New York state, were overwhelmingly New Englanders. Their names tell the story. Scarcely one has a name that does not suggest honorable generations behind him, some, perhaps, nearly to Plymouth Rock.

Of the thirty founders, twenty-one were Massachusetts born. Five were natives of New Hampshire, one of Vermont, and one of Connecticut. Two only came from New York state. Moreover, of the twenty-one Massachusetts men, sixteen came from that storied region west of the Connecticut River-a region which has had at all times no more pressing but welcome problem than how to educate its ambitious sons, and has sent out so many strong men to lead in state and nation. Three of the men, Hall, Lilly, and Page,—all freshmen,-were natives of the little town of Hawley. Lyman and Wright of '36 came from Easthampton, and Phillips, '36, and Williams, '38, from rural Ashfield, whose ripened charms were in after days to make her famous. Baldwin hailed from Tyringham. Sheffield sent Kellogg of '36, and Cummington, Richards, his classmate. From Northampton came Solomon Clark of '37, and from Chesterfield, Edward Clarke. Lyman (not related to Lyman, '36,) came from Charlemont, Morgan from Stockbridge, Noble from Williamstown and Sparks from Mount Washington. These were all '37 men.

Of the members from central and eastern Massachusetts, Pise came from Belchertown, Darling from Sterling, Brigham from Marlboro, Clisby from Medford and Tappan from Boston.

Among the New Hampshire men, Bell of '36 came from Antrim; Hobart, a classmate, from Columbia; Brown, '37, from Nelson; Hills, '38, from Hancock; and Peabody from Peterboro. All but one of these towns is in the southern part of the state and farthest from the widening influence of Dartmouth, already shining in the reflected glory of Daniel Webster.

Vermont's only representative was Brooks, '38, from Halifax, close to the Massachusetts border, and Connecticut's was Field, '37, from Haddam, far down on the Connecticut below Hartford. New Windsor, N. Y., sent Lockwood, '37, and Port Jervis, in the same state, sent Bross, '38.

The only real city man among all this company was Tappan, who came from Boston. For the most part, it is plain, these were plain, country boys, the majority, in all probability, farmers' sons with all that term meant in that generation—the early morning "chores," the district school, the hard struggle to find means for college, the many interruptions of the year's work to fill up the slender financial store by teaching. They had come to college, not for amusement or a "good time," but to make themselves fit for the sober duties of life.

It was no gathering of striplings on that November evening. There were, indeed, extremes of age in that group, which it would be difficult to match in college classes of these days. Ten men were present from each of the three lowest classes. Oldest of all was Phillips, a junior, who was just past 28. Darling, also of '36, was 27 years and 8 months and Bell, a classmate, was 26 years and 10 months. Five others were 24 or over, two of these being freshmen. In sharp contrast to these ages were those of Tappan, a sophomore, not yet 17; Noble, his classmate, not 17 and a half, and Field, just 18. It is a remarkable, and perhaps significant, coincidence that this meeting should have been held on the birthday of the two men of all that company whose work in the world was to receive the widest recognition. Bross attained his majority on that day, while Field reached eighteen vears. Who knows but what the double event may have been one occasion for the gathering and that out of the rejoicing over comrades' natal days came the larger birth of the fraternity? The average age of the men at the date of the founding was 22 years and two months. But while the average age of the juniors was 24 years and one month, that of the sophomores was only 20 years and seven months, which would compare well with more modern classes. of the freshmen was 21 years and nine months.

Of the thirty founders, five did not graduate. Lyman and Morgan ended their college careers in 1835, Lockwood left college in 1836 and was graduated at Union in 1839. Brooks and Hills left at the same time, the former becoming a student and graduate of Washington College, Pa., and the other of Marietta. Both took their degree in 1839. Seventeen of the founders became clergymen, a common percentage in those days among college men. Two, Noble and Bross, entered journalism; three, Field, Morgan, and Tappan, all of '37, became lawyers. Hobart studied medicine and Lyman, '37, dentistry. Three, Baldwin, Richards, and Sparks, became teachers. Lyman, '36, studied theology a year, then taught several years and finally became a manufacturer. Page became a merchant. Clisby alone did not live to enter any occupation. He died during the fall after graduation. Of the seventeen clergymen, six attended the Hartford Theological School, two went to Auburn, one to Andover, two to Princeton, one to Lane and one to the General Theological Seminary. Lockwood divided his time between Union and Princeton, and three studied theology privately.

Of the active lives of the founders there is not space nor need to speak in great detail here. In true pioneering spirit a large number, especially among the clergymen, went West and were important factors in the building up of new communities. Two followed Clisby quickly to the grave-Sparks in 1838 after but a year's teaching in Lanesboro, Mass., and Baldwin, who lingered three years in consumption, teaching part of the time, and dying in Great Barrington, Mass., in 1839. A newspaper report of Baldwin's death speaks in warm terms of his fine Christian character. Brown died in 1846 at Peekskill, N. Y. He had studied theology privately and enjoyed one pastorate of seven years at West Somers, that state, when his life ended. Brown's sister married Hobart of '36. It was nine years before the ranks were again broken, Lilly dving in 1855 at Andover, N. Y., at the age of 45. He studied at Auburn and spent virtually his entire life in pastoral and missionary work in New York state. A brother of Lilly became a member of the Williams chapter in the class of '48. Hills passed away a year later. After his graduation at Marietta in 1830, he had studied two years at Lane and was pastor fourteen years at Manchester and Oakford, Ill.

Eleven years, including the civil war period, elapsed without a single death. Noble died at Hampton, Ill., in 1867. He was at the time editor of the National Merchant of Burlington, Ia., after having taught school a brief period after graduation and built railroads east and west. Lyman, '37, had been for many years a dentist in Newark, N. J., when he died there in 1871. Hall died the same year in Monterey, Mass. Private theological study, fifteen years in two pastorates and eight as principal of Lee Academy brought him to 1864, when he enlisted as the chaplain of a colored regiment and served to the end of the war. Brooks was graduated at Washington and at Princeton Theological Seminary. His thirty years of clerical labors were divided among six states and he had hardly gone to Elgin, Ill., when he died there in 1872 at the age of 60. Darling spent only ten years in the East, after having obtained a theological education at Gilmanton, N. H. In 1850 he went to Wisconsin to whose struggling and needy churches he gave twenty-three fruitful years, dying in Fond du Lac in 1873. Brigham taught a year, went to Andover and preached all his life in Vermont and Bay State churches. He died in 1874 at Winchendon, Mass. Bell studied theology at Hartford and gave all his years to three churches in the Nutmeg state. He died at Westchester, Ct., in June of the centennial year.

There was then another nine years' interval, Page dving in 1885 at Rahway, N. J., where he had been a merchant for forty-five years. Phillips, who died in 1886, had spent virtually his whole life in Massachusetts pastorates after taking a theological degree from Hartford. He died in Amherst at the age of 79. Kellogg was 76 when he died at Heuvelton, N. Y., in 1887, after a most active pastoral life in Pennsylvania, Massachsuetts, and New York. Lyman, '36, died two years later at Easthampton, Mass., having been successful as a manufacturer of reflecting telescopes. He taught school five years, studied at Auburn, resumed his teaching for six years, preached six or eight years and finally entered business. Two of his brothers, Addison of '39 and Horace of '42, were also members of the fraternity.

Bross died in 1890, full of honors. He had spent the first ten years of active life in teaching in New York state but finally went to Chicago and for four decades was one of the leading journalistic figures of the West. He was lieutenant-governor of the state in 1864. In the business, educational, and scientific circles of the city he was a living force. His love for the fraternity, which he helped to found, was of the deepest and most enthusiastic character throughout his life. Hobart, who died the same year, was for thirty-two years a physician in Worcester, Mass., following a fourteen years' residence in Southboro. He, too, was an ardent disciple of Delta Upsilon as the successor and amplifier of the old Social Fraternity.

Clarke died in 1801 in Springfield, Mass. He is believed to have drafted the first constitution of the fraternity. From Hartford Theological School he went to Middlefield, Mass., in which town and those adjoining he spent most of his active life as a pastor. Pise attended the General Theological Seminary in New York. He first was rector in Manlius, N. Y., spent eighteen years in Tennessee, five in Indiana and two in Maine, then going to Glendale, Ohio, where he was active till death in 1894. Many educational and church positions were held by him in his almost half a century of service. Morgan went direct to Georgia from college, studied law in the intervals of editing a local newspaper and was admitted to the bar in 1845. He was a member of the constitutional convention in 1865 and later a member of the legislature. He never married and his death in 1804 on the eightieth anniversary of his birth was a lone one. Williams, who was graduated at Hartford, passed his life in Connecticut pastorates, preaching thirty-four years in the Congregational church at Chaplin. in 1806 in East Hartford. Peabody also was restricted in his labors for the church, though he served parishes in each of the New England states. He died at Longmeadow, Mass., a month after Williams' death.

Of Field's illustrious career the mention must suffice. It is worth while noticing that even in his later life he took a very decided personal interest in the doings and progress of the fraternity. He died in Washington in 1800.

Richards was for ten years principal of the Stillwater (N. Y.) Academy. He then made Washington, D. C., his home and taught many years, besides writing copiously on educational themes. He was the first superintendent of public schools in the national capital. As alderman of the city he was for a time acting mayor in war times. The National Educational Association elected him its first president. He died in 1899 on the anniversary of the fraternity's birth. A son of Richards is a sophomore member of the present Williams chapter.

Out of the thirty founders only four now survive. Wright of '36 is a retired clergyman, living in Seattle, Wash., at the age of 03. Clark of '37 is also retired from parish work and living in Chicago. He is 90 years old. Lockwood of '37, a third retired clergyman, resides at Woodhaven, N. Y. He is 86. Tappan is a lawyer at Fairhaven, Mass., virtually in retirement at the age of 84. It has been given these to see the ripening fruits of the little seed sowed by them three score years ago. It is theirs to realize how great an organization of college men has grown from their modest initiative. It is their legitimate pride to know that the fraternity still stands firmly by the large principles of the founders, that it still holds fast to the idea of justice and equity in college affairs.

There is a pretty story that comes to us from Athens. Two rival sculptors were ordered to fashion statues of Minerva. One came on the day appointed with a beautiful work of marble and ivory, the other with what looked uncouth and unshapely in its simple granite. The populace clamored for the first and it was lifted to crown the high pedestal. As it ascended, its beauty lessened and lessened, and when it reached the top, it was shapeless and ugly. Then the crowd called for the other. As it was lifted, the seemingly harsh lines softened into beauty and when it was set upon the summit, all acclaimed it as one of Athens' masterpieces.

Is not this story an allegory of our fraternity? The secret societies have by virtue of their secrecy a certain glamour for many minds—a first-appearance attractiveness. Our guiding principle may seem too blunt and positive to be quickly accepted by young college men. But when time and tide have corrected the vision, when intelligence and common-sense have set things in their proper proportions, shall we not say that Delta Upsilon stands forth most beautiful before the world, justified and glorified by the truth that is in her?

Wilson L. Fairbanks, Tufts '87.

HISTORY OF THE YOUNG CHAPTERS

TECHNOLOGY

The Technology chapter was the result of an acknowledged desire and a recognized necessity; its growth was most natural, vigorous, and of a permanent nature, and although its position was at first unique, it is now one of the deeply established parts of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity. The conditions at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1891 were almost opposite to those at the colleges where there were Greek letter fraternities; at the colleges the fraternities were the natural results of men being together, not only in their work but in their sports and all parts of their daily lives; at Technology the fraternity was needed as the cause to bring the men together. The first fraternity to enter Technology was Sigma Chi in 1882; a few others gradually established chapters there, but fraternity life was not very strong until in the early nineties. During the college year of '90-I several local societies were formed, and in due time admitted to various fraternities.

To Brother Frank C. Shepherd, '92, belongs the credit of the first plans for a chapter of Delta U. at Technology. In February '91 he suggested to a few classmates that a local society be formed with the intention of becoming a chapter of Delta Upsilon. At that time Brothers Louis Derr, Amherst '89, and Lincoln C. Heywood, Brown '90, were students at Technology and their aid was early solicited and gladly given. On March 19, 1891, eleven of those pledged met in Brother Shepherd's room and organized the local society of Nu Chi with the declared intention of applying to Delta Upsilon for a charter as soon as possible; the constitution drawn up by Brothers Derr, Schneider, and E. C. Wells, was similar to that of Delta Upsilon. In a few weeks Brother Frank Vogel, Harvard '87, at that time instructor in modern languages, was made an honorary member of Nu Chi and became an earnest and efficient worker for the little society. We hired a small back room on a side street for our meetings, and soon we were in good working order. We tried in everything to keep up to the high standard of Delta Upsilon, for we felt that the future prosperity of our chapter depended on the sound and right foundation of our local society. Our first initiation and banquet was held at the Thorndike, May 8, 1891, when eleven men were initiated, and delegates from Harvard, Brown, and Tufts were present as our guests. Then with twenty-six names our petition was sent to the Executive Council and our desire made known to all the chapters, so that when the 57th Convention met with Harvard in November '91, nearly all of the chapters were in favor of admitting us.

Up to this time Delta Upsilon had no chapters in strictly scientific institutions, and a few of the more conservative delegates were at first opposed to giving a charter to Technology, but when these delegates saw the Institute of Technology, met the men of Nu Chi, and realized the earnestness and the sincerity, and the ability of the petitioners, there was no longer any doubt on the question and the charter was gladly granted. That night twenty-seven members of the local society of Nu Chi were initiated at the Harvard Delta U. Hall and the Technology chapter was permanently established. Since that time the career of the chapter has been one of progress; the dark days have been very few indeed and have resulted only in better things and brighter prospects.

At the time of its admission into the Fraternity, the local society occupied a large front parlor in a private house at 377 Columbus Av. It was here that the delegates of the 57th Convention met most of the charter members for the first time. This room was the home of the chapter until May '92. The first meeting in the fall of '92 was held in one of the recitation-rooms of Rogers Building and the second meeting in the Boston Y. M. C. A. Building.

On October 14, 1892, the chapter held its meeting in a large room on the northeast corner of the basement of the Ludlow on St. James

Av., and had a pleasant home here until June '93. At this period in our history it was found that large and more convenient quarters were needed for the well-established and growing chapter, and a canvass of the members in June '93 showed that the venture could be made. Accordingly, after a series of house-hunting trips, a fourstory house, 540 Massachusetts Av., was rented for one year and the first meeting of the following term was held here, September 26. 1893. It was a bold undertaking but it was so well carried out that soon enough money was raised to furnish the house completely. rooms were rented to the undergraduates and the house was so well managed that at the end of the first year all running expenses were paid and three hundred dollars set aside for a sinking fund to pay off the debt. At the beginning of the next college year a table was started, and the men lived at the house altogether. The house has been a success ever since, and has been most ably managed by the various house-managers elected by the chapter each year. For six years "Number 549" was the home of the undergraduates and the meeting-place for the Alumni. It was comfortably and tastily furnished, but it was quite a distance from the Institute buildings, and the dining-room was not large enough.

In the fall of '99 the chapter made a change and took the large house at 264 Newbury St. for its home, only about eight minutes' walk from the Institute. The location, the arrangement, and the furnishings of the house are excellent, and the active chapter has a convenient and comfortable home. Besides the dining-room which accommodates twenty-four at table, and butler's pantry, on the first floor, there is a large parlor. The three upper floors contain six large double rooms, and three smaller hall bedrooms and two baths. We are justly proud of our home and feel that the contrast between it and our first meeting-place is a faint indication of the development of the chapter.

The strength of a chapter is in its men. The undergraduates are doing their work in all branches of Institute life most ably and creditably; the Alumni are actively engaged in engineering, in teaching, and in business all over the world. They are "Captains of Industry," and are found as engineers, superintendents and managers, instructors and writers, designers, builders, and manufacturers. The history of our first decade is a good record; the pace we have set necessitates, first of all, adherence to "Justice our foundation," and earnest, honest endeavor in all undertakings.

SWARTHMORE

The installation of chapters of Kappa Sigma and Phi Psi in 1889 marks the beginning of fraternity life at Swarthmore. Soon after the establishment of these two chapters in response to the fraternity movement, a senior society, Kappa Beta Sigma, was organized, and to this society the Swarthmore chapter of Delta Upsilon owes its existence.

In 1892 Kappa Beta Sigma was organized under the name of Pi Kappa Omicron, and men from all the classes were initiated into the local fraternity, as it was then called. As the aim of the society was to become a chapter of one of the national fraternities, it was decided that application should be made for a charter from Delta Upsilon, and in the fall of the same year two delegates bearing a petition from Pi Kappa Omicron were sent to the Colby Convention. But owing to the conservative policy of Delta Upsilon, and a disinclination to place a charter in so small a college as Swarthmore, the charter was not granted.

At the next convention delegates from Swarthmore again appeared, this time bringing letters of recommendation from every man of the faculty. As a result of this second application the matter was unanimously left to the Executive Council, and Pi Kappa Omicron was, to all intents and purposes, a chapter of Delta U. During the winter the chapter received visits from Ellis J. Thomas, Williams '88, of the Executive Council, and Wilson L. Fairbanks, Tufts' '87, editor of the Delta Upsilon Magazine. As these visits assured the Executive Council of Swarthmore's high standing among the other colleges, a charter was granted, and the evening of March 3, 1894, was fixed for the installation of the Swarthmore chapter. On that evening, in the building of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia, pledges were administered to forty-one graduate and undergraduate members of the local society. The president of the fraternity, Judge Elijah B. Sherman, Middlebury '60, presided over the ceremonies and Wilson L. Fairbanks, Tufts '87, and John Patterson, Columbia '93, administered the pledge. After the initiation a banquet was held. Since that evening forty-two men have been initiated, giving the chapter a total membership of eighty-three.

As the youngest fraternity in college, Delta Upsilon had much to overcome, but the sterling qualities and all-around ability of its men soon won for it a controlling position in college affairs. While active in the social life of the college, the chapter has taken its full share of honors in scholarship and athletics. Seven out of the ten editors-in-chief of the college annual have been Delta U.'s, as have also been seven out of the last nine editors-in-chief of the Phoenix. As for athletics, it is a significant fact that four out of the five 'varsity captains now in college are Delta U.'s. In the rushing we have always obtained a full share of desirable men, although the rivalry between the fraternities is of necessity very intense in so small a college as Swarthmore. Notwithstanding the fact that Delta Upsilon conservatism is the chapter policy, a good man is never overlooked, and in choosing men the chapter always considers the possible growth of a man under the influence of the fraternity. It has been the aim of the chapter to gather together men who are active and capable in college affairs and to bring about in each man the symmetrical development which, while it benefits the individual, also proves to the outside world the real advantage of fraternity life.

STANFORD

The history of the Delta Upsilon movement at Stanford University began with the entrance into the university in the fall of 1893. of Albert B. Crane and Melville T. Cook, both of the De Pauw chapter. They believed that the high rank then attained by Stanford University (and also the University of California), with their promises of brilliant futures, made the establishment there of two chapters of Delta Upsilon not only safe but extremely desirable.

The Delta U. members of the Stanford faculty expressed their thorough concurrence in these views, and Brothers Cook and Crane definitely decided to lend their aid in the formation of local societies which should petition the Fraternity for charters. They fully appreciated the difficulties to be met. The cherished conservatism of Delta Upsilon, the gap of nearly two thousand miles which would separate the contemplated chapters from the nearest existing chapters—these were obstacles that seemed all but insurmountable; obstacles, they knew, which could be overcome only by the petitions of two strong, young, local societies, mutually helpful and worthy the earnest aid of the Delta U.'s of the two faculties and others in the vicinity.

Brothers Crane and Cook found at Stanford the writer, who had been a pledged member of the De Pauw chapter. With his help they began the selection of men. Formal organization was not effected until the beginning of the second semester. A meeting for that purpose was held in Cook's and Crane's room in Encina Hall, January 12, 1894. The name of Alpha Upsilon was chosen and organization was completed. Edward C. Harwood, '95; Benj. F. Bledsoe, '96; John M. Gates, '96: Charles W. Miller, '96; Samuel Platt, '97, and J. H. Timmons, '97, were the charter members.

The existence and aims of the local fraternity were announced in the Daily Palo Alto of February 9. The first of March we moved into Mariposa Hall, where we had the advantage of the exclusive occupation of one floor and a nearer approach to chapter-house life than was possible in Encina. Mariposa Hall was the society's home till the beginning of the fall semester, 1895, when a change was made to a leased chapter house.

In the fall of 1894 circulars were addressed to all the chapters and officials of Delta Upsilon, and later a petition for a charter was sent to the Convention at Union. In response to a telegram of anxious inquiry came the message, "Admitted on three years' probation from date of organization." Disappointment because of the length of the period of probation prevailed at first over the pleasure of our partial success. The '95 and '96 men would not become Delta U.'s during their undergraduate life. Two years of uphill work confronted the local society, for the life of a local at best is a struggle against adverse conditions. But this discouragement soon gave place to the determination to make a strong appeal to the next convention for immediate admission.

Circulars were again sent out in the fall of 1895, and November found E. C. Harwood, '95, and A. C. Wyckoff, California '97, at the convention at Greencastle, as delegates from Alpha Upsilon and Omega Alpha, petitioning for the immediate establishment of chapters at Stanford and California. Their efforts were successful.

March 13, 1896, was finally fixed as the date of the double institution. Rev. Thornton B. Penfield, Columbia '90, was chosen by the Executive Council to institute the two chapters. Judge E. B. Sherman, Middlebury '60, the honored president of the Fraternity, made every arrangement to accompany him and participate in the ceremony, but illness unfortunately made it impossible.

The institution of the twin chapters took place March 13, 1896, at the California Hotel, San Francisco. Sixteen alumni were present, most of them prominent educators of the Coast. The impressive ceremony was conducted by Mr. Penfield; the charge to the chapters was delivered by Prof. James O. Griffin, Cornell '81, of Stanford University. After the institution a dinner was served, followed by toasts, President Jordan, Cornell '72, presiding as toastmaster.

The Stanford chapter has uniformly received courteous treatment at the hands of the other fraternities; indeed, while still Alpha Upsilon, the society was treated with more consideration than it had reason to expect. Alpha Upsilon made a name for itself in scholarship that need not be surpassed by the Stanford Chapter of Delta Upsilon. As debaters, on the various college publications, and in positions of honor in college organizations its members reflected credit upon their fraternity.

In the fall of '96 the chapter house now occupied by the chapter was finished—the third fraternity house to be completed here, the first as regards location and equipment. It was immediately demonstrated that Alpha Upsilon, with national ranking given by Delta Upsilon, occupied the front rank of Stanford fraternity life. In the scholarly, literary, social, and athletic branches of university life her place is one of which she may well be proud. At present Delta Upsilon has twelve brothers on the university faculty, and much is due to their aid and encouragement.

CALIFORNIA

The coming of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity to the Pacific coast was a case of legitimate expansion. When the time appointed by the Fates for extension had arrived, the proper missionary work was not lacking, and it is to two of her faithful sons from a Middle West chapter that the fraternity owes in large measure its Pacific chapters, if that be any debt. To these "path-finders" of the last decade of the century we shall have occasion to refer gratefully again in this paper.

Before the sun of Delta Upsilon, now rising for the first time in the far West, had dawned on Berkeley, a strong local society had been formed at Stanford under the eye of her President and the numerous loyal Delta U.'s in her faculty, and this organization immediately began to look around for Berkeley affiliations. In the fall of 1893, therefore, after discreet inquiries, a letter was addressed to Warren E. Lloyd, California '95, asking whether he would consider favorably the organization of a local society in the University of California to coöperate with the Stanford society in striving for charters from Delta Upsilon. The preliminary negotiations were conducted by two De Panw Delta U.'s, Messrs. Cook and Crane, who were then pursuing graduate work in the recently-organized Stanford University. They journeyed frequently back and forth between Stanford and Berkeley, inspiring confidence in the minds of all with whom they met, and in short, earned themselves an undying right to be named as among the potent influences in the formation of the western chap-The enlightenment given by these missionaries as to Delta Upsilon's aims and ideals, the friendliness and enthusiasm of the Stanford chapter, the reserved, but none the less sincere, encouragement of the Delta U.'s holding academic positions in the two universities, produced in time their inevitable result, and the resolve was made that California should have her aspirant society as soon after the Christmas vacation of '93 as an organization could be effected.

Omega Alpha, the parent society of the present California chapter, was formally organized April 28, 1894, with eight members. Monogram pins were shortly afterwards displayed, and a public avowal of the organization was made by its members attending class-day exercises in a body. The entrance of this society into the fraternity life of Berkeley was highly honorable to all concerned; from the first no secret was made of the fact that the infant organization was striving for a charter from Delta Upsilon, and this frank and open position had no slight influence towards our cordial reception into the fraternity circle of the University of California.

But there were other reasons as well. Perhaps the most important one was that, owing to the rapid growth of the University, the percentage of non-fraternity men was unusually large. The eight established fraternities had no difficulty in keeping up a working membership, and therefore had not developed any great antagonisms. There were about four hundred and fifty regular college men not in established fraternities to choose from; these, as a rule, were non-fraternity men, rather than anti-fraternity in sentiment, so that several of the groups that later became chapters of different national fraternities were formed about this time.

Another reason was that Omega Alpha had an undoubted college standing. Almost every phase of college life was well represented, as the biographies of the earlier members will sufficiently show. Six months had been given to the task of getting together the right men before the announcement of organization was made, and in no case was the standard of qualification relaxed in order to hasten the completion of the work of founding the society. As a result, congeniality and homogeneity obtained in the fraternity from the very first. As to the University at large, the friendships that our members had already formed both among fraternity and non-fraternity men, and the fact that our society cherished no ideas of exclusiveness, brought us no small measure of good will.

Soon after organization a petition for a charter was addressed to Delta Upsilon. It was signed by the following members: W. E. Lloyd and A. W. North, seniors; F. H. Dam and J. G. Howell, Jr., juniors; J. A. Elston, C. A. Elston, E. C. Gage, and A. C. Wyckoff, freshmen.

After petitioning for the charter, and following loyally all suggestions, A. C. Wyckoff was sent to the '95 Convention, presenting our claims for admission successfully.

Though the convention had passed favorably upon the Stanford and California petitions, yet, owing to the great distance at which they lay from the Executive Committee of the fraternity, it was not till March '96 that the formal ceremony of initiation was completed. On the thirteenth of that month the two chapters were jointly installed at a meeting held at the California Hotel, San Francisco, Thornton B. Penfield, Columbia '90, acting on behalf of the Executive Council, and David S. Jordan, Cornell '72, filling the position of toastmaster upon that most auspicious occasion. It is worth noting in this connection that the anniversary of the foundation of Delta U. on the Pacific coast is observed by the two chapters in the form of an annual reunion on or near the date of the installation, this meeting taking place alternately at the sister universities.

The quarters that Omega Alpha had occupied on Kittredge Street were sufficient for the new chapter of Delta Upsilon until the fall of 1897, when they moved to the present chapter house, on the corner of Bancroft Way and Dana Street. Here the chapter has found a home much to its liking, and while regretting that they do not own their home, still they feel themselves fortunate in securing such pleasant quarters. The location of the present house is central, and within easy reach of the University.

We are looking toward a permanent home by the establishment of the House Fund Association of the California chapter. Every member on leaving the active chapter pledges himself to pay $50 in at least twenty years towards the purchase or erection of a suitable house for the chapter.

Another event which proved of deep interest to the chapter was the formation of the California Delta Upsilon Club, in the organization of which a generous share was taken by John G. Howell, Jr., California '96. It furnishes another of those rallying-points which the chapters on this coast need so much, for, far removed from their Eastern confreres, they must cultivate every possible method of keeping alive enthusiasm in the great cause they represent. The first annual banquet of the Club was held in San Franciso, November 30, 1900, and on that occasion no less than sixty were present, and at least a dozen chapters were represented.

The California chapter has now passed those most crucial years of early growth in which so many infant chapters die. It may be said at the present moment with some measure of confidence that it has won for itself golden opinions on all sides since its installation. Five years have come and gone since the ceremony was performed that bound the East and the West together in new ties, and the California chapter still stands for the high ideals with which it started its career.

The hold of the chapter on social life is strong, and in this particular respect we believe that Delta Upsilon yields the palm to none at Berkeley. In athletics we have never been found wanting, and the big "C" for athletic merit has fallen to many of our members. In scholarship we still maintain the traditions of the founders, and no better testimony of this fact could be adduced than the election of our entire senior delegation to Phi Beta Kappa at the January election. In other college activities, such, for instance, as theatricals and the editing and managing of college journals and annuals, we have had our full share.

On the occasion of the publication of this Decennial, therefore, the California chapter is happy to be able to report a united band of devoted alumni and a thoroughly homogeneous active chapter. Our joy in being able to offer such a report is partly local and personal, but in a broader sense we rejoice that the verdict of the Convention of '95 has been justified by the course of events since that date. We on the Pacific coast feel that whatever our shortcomings, we have sustained the assurances we made at the time of our admission to the glorious brotherhood, and we feel sure also that many an one who was at that time anxious with regard to the proposed Western extension has had opportunity and cause to realize that all his fears were groundless; and what is more, that Delta Upsilon has perhaps gained in some measure from her Pacific chapters, the last links in the great chain that reaches from ocean to ocean and from nation to nation.

McGILI.

Greek-letter societies with one exception made almost contemporaneous entrance into McGill University. The system so typical of student life of the United States for more than two generations had but one representative there. It was very evident, however, that there was room for more than one fraternity among more than one thousand students; and there are now five general fraternities and three local societies. The nine men, to whom Omicron Nu and the McGill chapter of Delta Upsilon in turn owe their existence, entered the Art Faculty of McGill in the class of '98. Attracted to one another early in their course by numerous affinities, they remained until the fall of '97 without any external bond of union. About this time, several of the group were invited to connect themselves with fraternities; but to preserve their unity, Omicron Nu was formed.

Brothers Heine, Maclaren and McConnell, all of '98, met early in the fall of '97, and discussed the formation of a Greek-letter society. They parted, each to ask two others. The first two meetings were held on September 28 and October 5 respectively, at the residence of McConnell. The three mentioned, with Brothers Bishop, Duff, Grace, and Thomas, of '98, who had decided to throw in their lot with the new society, formed a provisional society called "Unitas," and appointed committees to draft a constitution, to secure suitable rooms, and to secure entrance to some general fraternity. By October 9 they were settled in a flat of three rooms at 2443 St. Catherine St., their number increased by Brothers Campbell and Paterson, Arts '98, Davis, Science '98, Wilkins, Medicine '99. At this meeting the eleven men above mentioned formally adopted the constitution of a society designated Omicron Nu, whose object should be the securing of admission to Delta Upsilon. Delta Upsilon was chosen mainly through Davis, who had a brother in Technology, '98, and Heine, who had numerous school friends in the fraternity. On October 20, 1897, Davis received information from his brother that the Delta Upsilon Convention would open at Amherst the next day. A hurried meeting was held, and on almost an hour's notice, Maclaren, president, Heine, secretary, and Bishop were sent with Omicron Nu's application. They presented their petition to the assembled Convention, which petition was referred to the Executive Council for action.

The society went on strengthening itself during the next year, its members displaying the same energy which had distinguished them in their early course, until a few months after its organization, Omicron Nu was as strong as either of the two established fraternities and was competing successfully with them. Professors Capper and Dweley, and Drs. Deeks, Lockhart, Webster, and Wilkins, of the faculty, became members during this time.

The opening of the session of '98–9 found the society established in a rented furnished house at III Metcalf St., with accommodations for ten men, a step which materially added to the society's strength. In these quarters, the members had the pleasure of entertaining the official delegate of the Executive Council, in the person of its president, George F. Andrews, Brown '92. Encouraged by his favorable attitude, Omicron Nu was represented at the Pennsylvania Convention a few weeks later by a delegation of eleven, who were successful in accomplishing their mission and obtaining the desired charter.

The formal installation took place on the evening of November 11, 1898, in the parlors of the Omicron Nu House. Mr. Geo. F. Andrews conducted the rites of initiation, while Harvey F. Lake, Middlebury '99, acted as secretary, and Royal S. Haynes, Cornell '99, delivered the charge to the new members. The members then adjourned to the club-rooms of the Windsor Hotel, where the inaugural banquet was held. Robert C. Paterson, '98, the president of the chapter, acted as toastmaster. Thirty-five were present, including the following visiting brethren: George F. Andrews, Brown '92, and Royal S. Haynes, Cornell '99, the delegates of the Executive Council; Huntly W. Davis, Technology '98, Harry F. Lake, Middlebury '99, A. S. Scott and C. S. Anderson, Brown '00; and J. E. Parker, Middlebury '01.

Progress at the McGill chapter has been steady and assured. The chapter has been blessed with efficient officers, the finances are in good condition, the prestige of the chapter in social, athletic, and library circles is excellent, and no fraternity at McGill stands higher in the estimation of the students at large. On May 1, 1899, the chapter was located at 26 McTavish St., close to the University grounds, in a house leased and furnished throughout by the chapter, with living accommodations for eleven members.

The chapter has suffered one loss by death, though there is a melancholy consolation in the fact that the death was a glorious one. Harold L. Borden, '01, who was one of the two members of the McGill chapter to respond to his country's call to arms, was killed in action near Pretoria, South Africa, July 16, 1900. Brother Borden, serving as a lieutenant in the Canadian Mounted Rifles, had previously distinguished himself on two distinct occasions by conspicuous gallantry under fire, no less than by an earnest attention to his duty, and the welfare of the men under his command. The chapter lost in him one of its best men, and the brethren a good comrade and a true friend.

The history of Delta Upsilon in McGill, though brief, has been one of almost continued success. There have been discouragements at times, and many other troubles due to youth and ignorance, but all have been successfully surmounted. We look forward to the future with confident hopes of an ever successful and broadening fraternal life.

NEBRASKA

The idea of another society at Nebraska came to two classmates after seeing the great need of a higher fellowship not supplied by the existing fraternities, nor attempted by the societies. A field was plainly open for something that would build up manhood and also oppose the principles and practices that held sway at that time. Accordingly the two men of one idea invited two other comrades to their room one evening and laid their hopes and plans before them. And thus the Tau Delta Omicron fraternity was founded. It was an organized effort against the false fabric built up by the secret societies; but the main object was the betterment of self and the broadening of the social life of the university.

The early days of Tau Delta Omicron were days of persecution and bitter disappointment, as both Greek and Barbarian seemed determined that the upstart should die. The principles interwoven into the life of the little band were so new that they appeared radical to many, and the early growth was very slow. But in time the keener opposition were away and the class of men desired took up the standard of Tau Delta Omicron.

The brotherhood enjoyed by the founders of Tau Delta Omicron was in every way as helpful as planned, but the need of affiliation with a national organization began to be felt, as the local badge was almost meaningless away from the college walls. Accordingly a study was made of the national fraternities in order to ascertain which one more nearly coincided in principle with Tau Delta Omicron.

It was indeed fortunate that then Dr. H. O. Rowlands, Colgate '72, of the First Baptist Church of Lincoln, advised a petition to Delta Upsilon; and he so plainly and enthusiastically presented its advantages that all other organizations but Delta U. were forgotten.

As the University of Nebraska was probably unknown to most of the Delta U.'s, it was thought advisable to have Dr. Rowlands present the plea to the Convention of '97. He was cordially received, but the conservative policy of the fraternity was followed and Tau Delta Omicron was put on probation for one year.

In the spring of '98 A. H. Jameson of Technology '93 came out to look over the situation. In two days he satisfied himself sufficiently to report favorably to the Executive Council, while his visit added fuel to the flame of desire for Delta U.

Soon after this the war with Spain broke out and the call for volunteers came. Two of the members responded to the call, Brother Lunn being the first university student to give his life for his country.

In October, 1898, Brother Thompson was sent to the Philadelphia

Convention with more confidence than had been felt before. This Convention heard the petition of Tau Delta Omicron, and, as Brother Thompson afterward said, "took us in body and soul." On his return a jubilee banquet was held and eternal loyalty to Delta U. was pledged. On December 9, 1898, the formal installation took place and the lesser light of Tau Delta Omicron was merged in the greater one of Delta Upsilon. From that time a new life was infused into the Nebraska chapter and its influence grew until it is now felt in every phase of the university life.

Men have not been chosen for their athletic ability or social position, but rather for the qualities that go to make up the all-around man. The material side has not been neglected nor has a great show been attempted, but a conservative policy has been followed that has at all times kept the chapter out of debt. The first home was in a business block. This in time gave way to a rented house. Now negotiations are under way for the purchase of a house in an ideal location. This is fair traveling along fraternal lines and toward fraternal goals. The Nebraska chapter hopefully and heartily promises to sustain the position and the honor of Delta Upsilon.

TORONTO

Delta Upsilon has been represented at the University of Toronto for upwards of a year, but whoever wishes to review the history of the Toronto chapter must go back five years to the time which preceded the organization of Phi Alpha. The existence of the society will be seen to fall naturally into three divisions, periods which were dominated to a certain extent by slightly different ideals. But there has been no discontinuity; a few of the originators of the first organization are still within easy reach of the chapter and set an example of enthusiasm for the principles of Delta Upsilon.

Of the first period, that in which the idea of the organization of a fraternity had its rise, and of the class society from which it drew its first members, little need be said here. The history of Phi Alpha, with which we are more nearly concerned, dates from the early part of 1896. Founded by men who were among the most prominent undergraduates of their day, and demanding from its initiates the highest proofs of character and ability, it appeared that the new society was well equipped to face the difficulties which the lack of outside connection was sure to entail. But notwithstanding the brightness of the prospect, the advantages of becoming a chapter in an international fraternity were so great that steps were taken very early in our history to discover what fraternity approached most nearly to our aims and ideals.

However, Phi Alpha was enjoying its own fraternity life and there was no necessity for haste. The subject of affiliation with one society or another was discussed at the meetings; fraternity literature was passed from hand to hand; but we always returned to that fraternity which was first favorably brought to our notice, and which now has gained our devotion—Delta Upsilon.

When the University term opened in the fall of '98, steps were immediately taken towards laying our petition before the fraternity. This involved the expenditure of a great deal of labor and time, but the favorable action taken at Detroit in October '98, was such as to pay abundantly the work of the succeeding year.

Our formal initiation, which took place on December 15, 1899, marked the commencement of a third period of our fraternity life. New responsibilities had to be shouldered and broader fraternal duties clearly understood. The distinctive characteristics of Delta Upsilon have been as nearly as possible made our own. The greatest care is exercised to admit only men of promise and character. In both of these lines we have been successful in the past, and the present personnel of the chapter is the best sort of assurance for the future.

CHICAGO

In the early years of the University of Chicago there was a strong opposition on the part of the faculty to the introduction of fraternities into the university. However, this opposition to the Greek-letter societies was forced to give way before the growing desire on the part of the student body for their introduction. Local clubs had been formed both by the women and men, and these only waited for sanction by the faculty to apply for admission into the national fraternities. In the second year of the university such permission was gained by the men's clubs, but the women's organizations have always remained local societies. When once the restraint interposed by the faculty was removed, the number of fraternities that entered the field was quite disproportionate to the size of the student body. For this reason there seemed to be no opening at an early date for Delta Upsilon.

After seven years of existence the fraternities had begun to assume a more or less stable relation to one another and there seemed to be a place still unoccupied for a fraternity with the history and ideals of Delta Upsilon. Having this fact in mind and also being drawn to Delta Upsilon by family ties, two of the students of the university, John Mills, '01, and A. E. Bestor, '01, set under way a movement looking towards the establishment of a chapter of that fraternity at Chicago. A local society, the Iron Key, was organized in the fall of '99 which soon numbered nine members, and the cooperation of the members of Delta Upsilon in the faculty was secured. A meeting was held at the home of Dr. J. W. Thompson, Rutgers '92, in the spring of 1900, to which the local alumni and delegates from the neighboring chapters were invited. There the purposes of the society were set forth and plans were discussed for work in the future. During the summer active correspondence was kept up with local alumni. At the beginning of the fall quarter of 1900 the society secured a home for itself in the fraternity district of the university and prepared for an active campaign, both to secure desirable men for its own ranks and to gain the support of as large a number of the alumni and chapters as possible. In the first of these endeavors it was so far successful that at the close of the fall rushing season its numbers had increased to fourteen, while its success in regard to the second point was evidenced by the fact that at the Convention held at Syracuse in November, 1901, a charter was secured by the Iron Kev.

The Iron Key became the Chicago chapter of Delta Upsilon on the evening of January 5, 1901, at the Grand Pacific Hotel in Chicago. It has since endeavored to take its place in the fraternity life of the university and to fulfil as far as possible the expectations entertained of it. It is too young as yet to have much of a history, but such as it has is the result of earnest effort by its members to reach the goal of Delta Upsilon. The success of the effort made by the Iron Key to gain admission to Delta Upsilon was due chiefly to the untiring support of the alumni in the faculty, and it desires that in this record of its infancy it may pay a proper tribute to their brotherly advice and support.
